Dubai

is the most populous city an emirate in the United Arab Emirates and the second largest emirate by territorial size after the capital, Abu Dhabi. Dubai is located on the southeast coastal of the Arabian Gulf and is one of the seven emirates that make up the country. Abu Dhabi and Dubai are the only two emirates to have veto power over critical matters of national importance in the country's legislature. The city of Dubai is located on the emirate's northern coast and heads up the Dubai, Sharjah, Ajman Metropolitan area.

Dubai has emerged as a global city and business hub of the Persian Gulf region. It is also a major transport hub for passengers and cargo. By the 1960s Dubai economy was based on revenues from trade and to a smaller extent, oil exploration concessions, but oil was not discovered until 1966. Oil revenue first started to flow in 1969. Dubai's oil revenue helped accelerate the early development of this city, but its reserves are limited and production levels are low today, less than 5% of the emirate's renewed comes from oil.

The emirates's western-style model of business drives its economy with the main revenues now coming from tourism, aviation, real estate, and financial service. Dubai has recently attracted world attention through many innovative large construction projects and sports events. The city has become symbolic for its skyscrapers and high-rise buildings, in particular the world's tallest building, the Burj Khalifa.
